About the Company

include website

Filmmakers Collaborative (FC) is a national nonprofit organization that encourages and supports the making of great films and media projects by people of all ages and experience levels. Based in Melrose, Massachusetts, FC provides grants management, mentoring, and workshops to a diverse, national community that includes award-winning PBS documentarians, first-time producers and directors, and young people just discovering the power and potential of visual media. In 2013, FC launched the Boston International Kids Film Festival (BIKFF), in partnership with Tufts' Film & Media Studies program.

About the Winternship

details and responsibilities

The FC Wintern will help expand the organization's network of festival sponsors, partners, advertisers, and attendees; find schools and organizations to host film screenings and workshops during the school year; and provide administrative support to FC. As far as possible, FC will tailor the job to the students' expertise and interests.

The Wintern will:

- Perform outreach for FC's Academy filmmaking program that will take place in summer, 2025
- Analyze survey results from the November 2024 Boston International Kids Film Festival
- If feasible, work in the classroom as assistant in FC Academy class

This Winternship opportunity is ideal for students interested in independent film, documentary film, film festival promotion, and getting started learning about the film industry in general.
